

SEECquel- Week 1

---

Week in Review

As this was our first week on the project, and the start of a new semester, this week was largely geared toward figuring out everyone's roles and schedules and setting up for the coming weeks. Earlier in the week, we did some initial brainstorming to see where everyone is at, and Martin did some research on rugged tablet options.

We had our first client meeting on Friday at the Schrader Center in Wheeling, WV. It was an extremely productive meeting for the team. Our client, Eriks Janelins, gave us a tour of the center, and an in depth overview of what our goals for the project were and what the Center already has in place, which gave us a great deal starting point for brainstorming in depth.

The Coming Week

Ideally, we would like to use the information we gained from the client meeting to produce a solid pitch that we can make during our next client meeting, and at least get started with the poster and logo.
