Discovering Nature Through Play

December 9, 2012

Week in Review

This is it; this is the very last week of the Fall 2012 semester at the ETC, except Finals week, of course. This week has been concerned with making final changes before our Finals presentation Wednesday afternoon. Our artists have been busily working to finish our replacement intro and outro videos, and our programmers have been making minor tweaks to the UI and busily looking for any remaining bugs to fix, and editing the cheat sheet which accompanies our experience for the benefit of their chaperones.

Aside from tweaks, we've been readying the project for the ETC archives and editing our Finals presentation.

This is our final Avatar. Adding a toon shader gives him more of an illustrated look, which works a little better when using static poses. The end result of our post-Softs changes is a much warmer and friendlier looking AB Brooks.

The Coming Week

Our Finals presentation will take place on Wednesday, December 12, at 1:30 pm. Thursday afternoon, we will go back to the Schrader Center one last time to reinstall the SEEC podium (which we previously borrowed to set up triggers for the videos and gallery).
