

Skyline Newsletter - Week 1

This week, we were given six different stories from the faculty and were asked to choose two and then come up with an art direction for the piece. In addition, we were allowed to choose two stories from public domain that we could animate in a 1-5 minute piece.

Given this task, we came up with ideas that we all liked. We had a meeting on the art style of each, the direction and feasibility of each project. From there we decided which ones we liked best and weeded out the ones we did not. After all this had been completed, we created a story description chart for the four stories we wanted to complete and posted them on our wall and added to it throughout the course of the week.

In other news, we came up with our name Skyline and are currently working towards theming with posters, half sheets, logo and room decoration.

Next week, we will be preparing for our presentation on Wednesday to show our four stories to the faculty. Once this gets approved we will get started on our production pipeline.

Tasks

What we have done:

- Find the rolls each want to be.
- Come up with 6 ideas for our story.
- Discuss about our team logo, poster, half sheet, and team photo.

Problems we encountered:

- Find out two stories per person.
- How to make our ideas creative from the original stories.

The goal for the next week:

- Pitch 4 stories to our advisers
- When the pitch is done, we will dig out more details from the story we chose.
